

Women Teachers' day: 3rd January

January 3 observed as Women Teachers' Day marks the birth anniversary of Savitribai Phule, the first female school teacher in India in the 19th century. Savitribai Phule broke the traditional stereotypes of the 19th century in British colonised India at a time when women's grievances were rarely heard. Savitribai Phule and her husband, Jyotirao Phule, opened India's first school for women in Pune in 1848. Besides becoming India's first female teacher, Savitribai also founded 17 more schools. On this occasion every year our institution celebrates the women teachers' day and spreads the message to the students about the remarkable contributions of Savitribai Phule.2018-19

Telugu Bhasha Dinotsavam

Telugu Language Day is celebrated annually in the college on August 29, on the birth occasion of Telugu poet Gidugu Venkata Ramamurthy. During British rule, he was a Telugu writer and one of the first contemporary Telugu linguists and social visionaries. The language is known as “The Italian of the East” because Niccol de Conti, a 16th-century Italian traveller, discovered that the Telugu language, like the Italian language, finishes with vowels. Ramamurthy’s efforts resulted in Telugu becoming a standard language. To commemorate Ramamurthy’s efforts, the day is being celebrated.
